The chair of Portsmouth Safeguarding Children Partnership, Derek Benson, said: "

The review has concluded that the actions of Child J were not predictable or preventable by any of the agencies involved. We will work with partner organisations to follow the recommendations to ensure we deal more effectively with similar circumstances in the future.

"We will share this review report with the North Yorkshire Safeguarding Children Partnership and highlight the issues involved when children are placed significantly out of area with to the National CSPR panel and the Safeguarding and Child Protection division at the Department for Education as suggested."
